80th Annual Meeting Highlights

Seattle was the site of the American Medical Women's Association's 80th Annual Meeting, Women Empowering Women: Planning Our Global Family which was held November 1-5, 1995 at the Westin Hotel. More than 700 women physicians and medical students attended the meeting.

Career development seminars were featured prominently reflecting AMWA's commitment to this topic as it pertains to women physicians. Seminars included leadership training, retirement planning, maternity and medicine, global opportunities for physicians, preventing, protecting and defending against educational and workplace abuse, and gender equity in medicine.

"AMWA's Annual Meeting reflects the increasingly important role of women physicians in medicine," said Gerrie Gardner, DO, AMWA's Program Chair. "The workshops and many nationally recognized speakers addressed not only the career development issues of women physi-

Jean L. Fourcroy, MD, PhD, Named AMWA President

Jean L. Fourcroy, MD, PhD, a Medical Officer with the Food and Drug Administration, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Rockville, Maryland, was named AMWA President during the 80th Annual Meeting.

Dr. Fourcroy holds clinical appointments at the Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences, F. Edward Hebert School of Medicine and the Walter Reed Army Hospital. She is a Captain (Ret.) of the Medical Corps of the United States Naval Reserve. She is a board-certified urologist.

As the 1995-1996 President of AMWA, Dr. Fourcroy hopes that AMWA will continue its efforts as a leader in policy, practice and training activities which benefit and provide a meaningful and supportive environment for women physicians. She hopes to provide resources in women’s health and disease prevention to consumers, business and government leaders, and the media.

Now is the Time to Get Involved

Jean L. Fourcroy, MD, PhD, AMWA President

The year to come may be troubling: our practice patterns are threatened, our autonomy weakened and our patients’ choices at risk. Although change, indeed chaos, is difficult to live through, we must effectively work with and use the moment of change to our advantage to improve women’s health, address gender equity, and enhance the future of medicine. Within AMWA, we have the goals and mechanisms to work with and through these changes. It will require the active participation of every committee and every active member.

The Governmental Affairs Committee will be particularly active this year. Issues of decentralization, health care access, managed care and contracts, and affirmative action are only a few of the the issues that will affect us and our position on each. If you would like to contribute to our efforts, contact Omega Silva, MD, Chair of the Governmental Affairs Committee through AMWA’s national office.

We know from the COGME report that “gender bias, remains the single greatest deterrent to women achieving their full potential in every aspect of the medical profession and is a barrier throughout the professional life cycle.” AMWA will be in a unique position to implement the actions of this report. Contact Bea Desper, MD, Vice President of Career Development through AMWA’s national office to become involved.

AMWA will continue to prioritize advocacy on key women’s health issues. We are the leading voice for women’s health. The Women’s Health Committee is co-chaired by Corinne Devereux, MD, and Sharyn Lenhart, MD. The interaction between this committee and the Ethics Committee will continue to be important issues such as pre-disease diagnoses, health care access and reproductive tissue abuse are defined. The recent position statement drafted by Janet Rose Osuch, MD, on Genetic Testing for Breast and Ovarian Cancer Susceptibility is an excellent example. We urge your participation in these areas.

To achieve our goals, we cannot and should not depend solely on our excellent staff. Our staff of 21 – many managing funded projects, e.g. cardiovascular disease in women, osteoporosis and tobacco control – cannot carry out all of those dreams and we would lose sight of our dreams if they did. We must work together to carry out these visions. In some cases, the implementation will be entirely local. Community service awards are one example of decentralization. This also will demand better continuity and growth of our branches.

Decentralization can be moved forward dramatically through electronic communication. I have appointed a task force to review the successes and failures of our branches. Susan Sklar, MD, (Long Beach) and Roberta Glick, MD, (Chicago), will be carrying out this review and helping us to implement identified changes. If you have ideas to share, contact Dr. Sklar at SUSinLB@AOL.COM.

Because the electronic highway will be so important for the future of AMWA, I have appointed an Electronic Task Force chaired by Angela Tiberio, MD (ATIBERIO @AOL.COM). We hope to establish local points of help. E-mail is a cost-saving communication necessity. I encourage each of you to join us on-line. You can reach me at sljbehr@AOL.COM. We are looking to implement bulletin boards, local web pages and a current directory.

I look forward to the year ahead and remind you to prepare for the 81st Annual Meeting in Boston.

Call for 1996 Awards Nominations

AMWA is seeking nominations for its Elizabeth Blackwell Award presented to a woman physician who has made the most outstanding contribution to the cause of women in medicine; the Bertha Van Hoose Award to a physician member who has demonstrated exceptional leadership and service to AMWA; and the Camille Mermod Award for a non-physician who has rendered exceptional service to AMWA or a physician member whose service is unrelated to her capacity as a physician. Send your personal statement indicating reasons for the nomination and the nominee’s current CV to Marie Glanz at AMWA by January 2, 1996.

In her diverse professional career, Dr. Fourcroy has practiced medicine and has a distinguished academic career. She was the fifth woman in the U.S. to receive board certification in urology. She founded the Women in Urology newsletter.

For the past 10 years, she has been active in AMWA serving as Vice President of Communications, Chair of the Publications, and Medical Opportunities Committees and as a member of the Finance, Governmental Affairs and Nominating Committees. She helped found the AMWA Foundation.

Dr. Fourcroy has been published in more than 20 publications. She has written and delivered more than 30 abstracts and meeting presentations. She is an expert in the areas of urology, male reproductive health, women’s health and drug development.

She holds a B.A. and M.A. from San Jose State University; an M.D. from the Medical College of Pennsylvania; and a PhD (anatomy) from the University of California at San Francisco. She holds medical licenses from California, the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Debra R. Judelson, MD, a senior partner with the Cardiovascular Medical Group of Southern California, was elected President-Elect. Dr. Judelson has served AMWA on the national and local levels as Vice President of Membership, and as Chair of the Program, Publicity and Public Relations, Cardiovascular Disease in Women, and Medical Ethics Committees. She has been Regional Governor and President of her branch. Dr. Judelson founded AMWA’s Education Project on Coronary Heart Disease in Women, a nationwide program that uses a Master Faculty to, as of this date to train more than 1,000 physicians to recognize heart disease in women.

Other newly elected AMWA officers include:

Vice President of Career Development: Beatrice Desper, MD, Ob-Gyn, Plainville, CT
Vice President of Communications: Diane Helentjaris, MD, Medical Director, Loudoun County Health Dept. Leesburg, VA
Vice President of Program: Willa Brown, MD, Bureau Director, Howard County (MD) Health Department, Preventive Medicine
Director of Students: Lynn Epstein, MD, Associate Dean of Medicine, Brown University School of Medicine, Providence, RI
Resident Representative: Frieda Hulka, MD, General Surgery Residency, Oregon Health Sciences University, Portland, OR

Call for Nominations

Leadership skills are applicable in pursuing your career path, developing strong social relationships and for professional and personal growth.

To this end, AMWA encourages its members to consider holding a national AMWA office.

It is not too early to begin thinking about yourself or a colleague for election to AMWA national office in 1996. To qualify, candidates must have been AMWA members in good standing for five years and in a national leadership position for two years.

The following national offices will be filled in 1996:

- President-Elect
- Vice President of Membership
- Vice President of Finance
- Director of Residents
- Resident Representative
- National Student Coordinators
- Speaker, House of Delegates
- Vice-Speaker, House of Delegates

Candidates will be asked by the Nominating Committee to submit a curriculum vitae and to complete a questionnaire.

Questionnaires are available from and should be returned to Deona Minor at AMWA.

The deadline for submissions is April 1, 1996.
Plenary speaker, Kenneth Edelin, MD, discusses how he was sent to jail for legally terminating a pregnancy.

Obesity, depression, stroke, urinary tract infections, AIDS, adjuvant breast disease, RU486 and chronic pain management, were among the women’s health topics featured during the four day conference.

The Opening Ceremony featured keynote speaker, Linda Hawes Clever, MD, Managing Editor of the Western Journal of Medicine. Dr. Clever provided participants with an inspiring speech as she talked about her trials and tribulations as a woman physician. She challenged the conference attendees to go back to their community and make a difference.

The Opening Ceremony also honored AMWA’s 1995 national award recipients. The Elizabeth Blackwell Award, which is presented to a woman physician who has made the most outstanding contribution to women in medicine, was awarded to Vivian Pinn, MD, Director of the Office on Women’s Health Research at the National Institutes of Health for her commitment to the education, research and promotion of women’s health. The Bertha Van Hoosen Award was given to Janet Rose Osuch, MD, Assistant Professor of Surgery at Michigan State University, for her exemplary leadership to AMWA in the area of breast cancer. The Welcome Reception, sponsored by Cadillac Motor Car Division, provided attendees with a chance to expand their professional networks and socialize with colleagues.

The Plenary Session featured four outstanding speakers well-known for their commitment to reproductive health. Claudia Morrisey, MD, Frederick, Maryland, discussed reproductive rights globally; Elizabeth Karlin, MD, Madison, Wisconsin, talked about daily life as an abortion provider in a hostile area; Kenneth Edelin, MD, Boston, Massachusetts, shared how he was convicted of murder for performing a legal abortion; and Sarah Weddington, Austin, Texas, gave a humorous and inspirational address about what she has learned in life from when she served as the lead attorney in the Roe v. Wade trial until today.

The conference concluded with the inauguration of Jean L. Fourcroy, MD, PhD, as AMWA’s 1995-1996 President and the President’s Banquet at the beautiful Tower Club.

“I look forward to continuing AMWA’s role as a leader in women’s health,” said Dr. Fourcroy. “I challenge each of you to join me.”
CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Thoughts on Careers

Lynn C. Epstein, MD, Associate Dean of Medicine, Brown University

While few of us can predict the intricacies of our careers, "successful" careers do not occur by chance. Regardless of how you define success, achieving goals is a function of professional development.

This process should be proactive with short-and-long term goals; serving as guideposts. Time lines monitor progress, while feedback and information lead to plan updates.

Forming the foundation of the career plan is your individual needs assessment. Create an outline of personal and professional responsibilities, combined with an awareness of life-stage issues. A key ingredient is how to balance the two.

Remember that your current priorities may change as you move across the life cycle. As Mary Catherine Bateson points out, life is made up of multiple commitments and beginnings, and continuity is the exception rather than the rule. Similarly, individual values and priorities impinge significantly on which pathways beckon.

Another parameter is the development of professional networks. Be aware of a range of options and strategies to draw reasonable conclusions about what is possible.

Learning to "work the system" can maximize the effectiveness of your efforts. You do not have to do it alone. Many people can offer valuable insight to assist you in making good choices and not one person has all the answers. However, the ultimate decisions should be made by you.

An essential aspect of career development is analyzing the institutional and external environments -- such as knowing the rules, being aware of what behaviors are rewarded, naming the obstacles, recognizing the opportunities for advancement, resolving conflicts, predicting how local/national change might affect you, and preserving the aspects of medicine most important to you. Remember the need for compensation and recognition.

Professional development is ongoing and there is no one answer. Therefore, it is imperative to keep within your own comfort level, and address your needs at each stage.

RESIDENT ROUNDS

Bi-Lingual Physicians

Frieda Hulka, MD, Resident Rep.

As the newly elected Resident Representative, my first job is this column. My hope is to make this a quick reference for a current topic...and requests are welcome.

Coming from the state (Oregon) leading the pack in managed care, I will attempt to make some sense of this new language we are being forced to learn. Here is an analogy...

You own a gas station (gatekeeper). Customers pull in, buy gas and get their cars fixed when necessary for a usual and customary fee. A new credit card company (preferred petrol organization-PPO) changes the structure of the reimbursement. The new credit card firm told the car owners' boss that they will cover all the car owners at a lower fee than the previous credit card firm. The new firm can do this because they will offer the gaskeepers all these new car owners as customers. They will pay you $12 per car owner per month, regardless whether the car owner uses your service. But if they need gas more frequently, it is still $12 per car owner per month (capitation).

For cars that break down, the PPO will set aside another $12 per car owner per month to pay for special repairs. If you are a good gaskeeper and the cars are kept in good repair, the extra money will accrue and the PPO will give you a percentage of it at year end (reward system).

But a few cars limped along and could have benefitted from a special repair (referral). The car owners discover that the gaskeeper made money by not referring for a special repair. The owners jointly sue the gaskeeper for allowing financial benefits to cloud his/her judgment.

These issues can be followed in the newspaper as they play out before us. I hope this provides insight to managed care. It is imperative that physicians are bilingual now.
